

Celebrating Black History Month with Arts Horizons

As we celebrate Black History Month's Centennial, we offer assemblies and workshops for students to experience Black history through storytelling, visual arts, music, and interactive discussion that honors the past and inspires the future.

Below are a few of our featured programs. Contact us to learn more about our other Black History Month offerings and to plan a program for your school or organization.

TRACING OUR ROOTS (PERFORMED BY WINCEYCO)

Explore the wonder of African American history through the power of dance, music, and dramatic storytelling with this musical play about a brother and sister who travel through time. Journey with them as they move from ancient Egypt to the slave plantations, and finally, to modern times. Learn the proud history of African Kings and Queens and pass-through different eras of music and dance including the Blues, the Lindy, Gospel, R&B, Rap, and Hip-Hop. Along the way, you will discover that certain inventions like the baby stroller, golf tee, traffic light, and lunar camera were all developed by African Americans.

rites of passage by Jahlil Shabazz

The earth's indigenous peoples used sacred rituals to incite, acknowledge, and celebrate transformation. Our rites of passage workshops create a specialized experience that can be tailored to any institution aiming to grow in social, emotional, and cultural intelligence. We utilize team building, personal reflection, group affirmation, and shared value systems in providing a platform for optimal growth. One of our mantras is: "The purpose of life is a life with a purpose." Our goal in rites of passage is to design the path to purpose.

LIVING THE LEGACY OF DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. BY MICHELE BALDWIN

Living the Legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is an engaging, student-centered assembly or workshop that invites young people to explore Dr. King's life, words, and enduring impact through multimedia, storytelling, reflection, and active participation. By connecting Dr. King's values to students' everyday experiences, this program encourages empathy, critical thinking, and civic responsibility.
